UM COURSE ON READING DISABILITIES TO BE OFFERED IN EAST HELENA

MISSOULA--

The University of Montana will offer a course on diagnosing and remedying reading disabilities beginning Jan. 29 at the Radley School in East Helena.

The course will also help participants understand the causes of reading disabilities and ways of interpreting diagnostic information.

"Informal Methods of Reading Diagnosis and Correction" is offered for three graduate credits. Lynette Mohler, assistant professor of education at Carroll College, will teach the class.

The class will meet Tuesdays and Thursday, Jan. 29-March 7, from 4 to 6:30 p.m.

Preregistration and payment of the $90 fee are required by Jan. 22. To register, or for more information, contact the UM Center for Continuing Education, 125 Main Hall, Missoula, MT 59812. Phone: 243-4626 or 243-2900.
